Applying for Planning Permission?
Get it right first time
Avoid delays
We can help you get your planning application right

Are you thinking of building a conservatory or getting the house extended? If you are, you might need planning permission.

At Ashford Borough Council we work hard to make the planning process as easy as possible. We receive 600 to 700 applications from householders every year.

But nearly half of these applications fall at the first hurdle – because the right information has not been submitted.

Every application we receive has to go through a validation process – and if the application is declared invalid there can be delays in getting a decision for what you want to do.

The aim of this booklet is to help you get it right first time – and avoid your application facing delays because it is invalid.
Do you really need planning permission?

Some extensions to houses and some garden buildings do not need planning permission.

You can check on the interactive house on the Planning Portal website.

If, after researching, you don’t think you need planning permission but would like formal confirmation from us, you should apply for a lawful development certificate.

Full details can be found at www.ashford.gov.uk/certificate-of-lawful-development.

A lawful development certificate will provide clarity to a prospective purchaser should you decide to sell your property at any point in the future.

What makes an application invalid?

You can find out more detail later in this information pack but these are some of the most common reasons:

- Existing and proposed elevations have not been submitted
- The wrong form was used and/or not fully filled in or no form was included
- No fee, or the wrong fee, was paid
- All the required plans were not included - especially the location plan, block plan or floor plans
- The agricultural holding certificate was not completed
- The plans and elevations submitted did not match each other
- The wrong ownership certificate was completed
- The development site was not clearly outlined in red on the location plan
- Not submitting the design and access statement when it was needed
We can help

You don’t want your planning application delayed – and neither do we.

That is why we have put this information pack together; to guide you through all the steps you need to take to make sure your application will get through the validation process first time.

We check every application received to make sure:

• The right forms have been completed correctly
• That all the necessary documents have been supplied
• The correct fee has been paid

If all those checks are passed, your application can go forward for a decision to be made on it.

We offer planning advice before you submit your application where we can provide guidance on any proposed developments. This service is beneficial to you and to us.

For more pre-application or detailed advice on submitting your application, visit www.ashford.gov.uk/making-planning-applications.

If you still need help after reading this pack, call our Planning Enquiries team on 01233 330264 for more advice. They can help to prevent delays in processing your application and getting a decision on it.
What sort of planning application do I need to make?

Domestic extensions
If you are intending to build a domestic extension, an outbuilding, a new hard standing – or something similar – you will need to submit a Householder Application.

Do I need Listed Building Consent?
If your application involves works to a listed building, that affect that character of the building as a building of special interest, you may very well also need to apply for Listed Building Consent.

If you are unsure if your house is listed then please look at our planning information map on our website.

For further guidance of what you need to submit, please visit our listed buildings page on the web site.

Do I need Conservation Area Consent?
Conservation Consent was abolished in 2013. If you live in a Conservation Area, you will need planning permission for relevant demolition in a conservation area to do the following:

- Demolish a building with a volume greater than 115 cubic metres. There are a few exceptions so please check with the council
- To demolish a gate, fence, wall or railing over 1m high next to a highway (including a public footpath or bridleway) or public open space; or over 2m elsewhere

If you are unsure where conservation areas are then please look at our planning information map on our website.

To find out more about conservation areas visit www.ashford.gov.uk/conservation-areas or contact our Planning Enquiries team for advice on (01233) 330264.
What you need to submit

You can apply online, which will provide you with more help, on the Planning Portal website.

The information and forms you submit for any planning application fall into two categories:

- National Requirements – these are the same wherever you are in the country
- Local Requirements – there are some requirements which are specific to Ashford. Not submitting the right information can delay your application, just as it can with the national requirements

National Requirements

The table below shows what we need for every planning application. You should send us two copies of every form and plan required – and don’t forget to include the right fee. If you are applying on the Planning Portal all plans and forms can be sent electronically and we will print them for you.

Should your application be for the comfort of a disabled person then this will be free of charge. Proof of disability will be required i.e. disability allowance, blue badge or Doctor’s note.

You will be entitled to one free submission per applicant per site provided:
• It is a re-submission of a previously refused or approved application within 12 months from the date of the decision
• It involves an application that was withdrawn within 12 months of the submission date.

Please visit www.planningportal.gov.uk for more information on how to complete your application forms and advice on common building projects such as extending your home, inserting windows and putting up buildings in the garden.

The easiest way to make the application is on the Planning Portal online submission pages.
Local Requirements

There may be some local requirements in Ashford that are needed to assess your application and you may also need to complete the forms listed in the table below. These are important because without them, it may delay your application.

Domestic Extensions: Supplementary Planning Guidance

For advice on the types of extensions and buildings the council encourages and good and bad examples of house extensions please read SPG10 Domestic Extensions in Urban and Rural Areas booklet, available from our planning policy webpages.

Good and bad examples of application submissions

Good examples

- Location Plan outlined in red, showing where north is on the plan (to scale 1:2500 or 1:1250).

- Block Plan (existing and proposed layout) (to scale 1:200 or 1:500).

- Floor Plan (existing and proposed) (to scale of 1:5) or 1:100.

- Elevation Plan (to include front, rear and sides showing doors and windows in the right places (to scale 1:50 or 1:100).
Bad examples

Block Plan (no scale, not showing north).

Elevation Plan no scale, no listing of what the plans are (existing or proposed), copied pencil drawing so very faint, probably not accurate.

Before you submit your application

☐ Check you have completed your forms in full
☐ Have included all the information and plans
☐ Make sure you have considered all the national and local planning requirements for your development

For more information on the requirements for your application, you can go to www.ashford.gov.uk/make-your-application-valid, or visit www.planningportal.gov.uk for more information and details on how to make an application online.

Building regulations

Don’t forget you will probably need consent under the building regulations too. This will be about how any building is going to be built, for example the levels of insulation in the roof or walls or where the drains are going to be and what specification they are.

For more information please visit www.ashford.gov.uk/buildingcontrol, or telephone 01233 330282.
